The security system upgrade will span the 256,000 square feet, 828 bed pre-trial and sentenced inmate facility. The scope of the project will include new 32" LCD Black Creek Super Display Touchscreen locking control stations for central control, housing unit control rooms, Sargent and Guard offices, Visit Control, Administrative Offices, Processing and Nurse Stations. In each instance, the system will provide CCTV camera call-up and video display for supervision and control of the facility. The upgrade will include a new intercom system including replacement of the existing cell pushbuttons, a new IP CCTV system consisting of new and replacement cameras, telephone control relay boards, new lighting control system, inmate television controls and a new access control system for the jail. A tablet and wireless access point in central control to allow staff to move about the control room while maintaining all control functionality.

Additionally, the system upgrade will include a new Black Creek IP Visitor® Video Visitation System. This on-premise inmate visitation system will allow for family and professionals to visit with the Floyd County Jail inmates without entering the detainment facility and will also allow for the recording of public visits. This installation includes 69 new ruggedized inmate video visitation stations, 2 new staff and public video conferencing stations, and 1 administrative/scheduling workstation. Jeff Lacey of Roberds Engineering provided design and consulting services on the project. Jail commander Major Robert Sapp is responsible for securing the bid and managing the security system upgrade at the Floyd County Jail.
